INSIDER’S TRACK

What value might a concierge add to a traveler’s itinerary and stay at a hotel or corporate housing destination?

Technology, especially Internet access adds many incentives to travelers, especially laptops and other handheld devices. The need to require a concierge who has intimate knowledge of local attractions, events, and general where-with-all’s not easily accessible by research on Google, Yahoo or other search engines, may come into sharp focus. This is especially true if the travelers is new to the destination and may or may not be familiar with the language spoken there or may not have the time needed to do a search.

Another reason to avail oneself of a concierge’s services may be that the traveler may be accompanied by family members who want to share the experience the destination has to offer while the key member may attend to business matters. Today’s technology offers a myriad of sources to “do-it-yourselfers”, yet, the personal touch of an experienced concierge should not be dismissed lightly.

Let’s look at some reasons why such experience may come in handy:

• Interpreters’ service: The world has shrunk and, while English is becoming more and more the common way to communicate, new markets are opening in countries where this is not yet common practice (China, Russia, France to name but a few).

• “Hotels-as-museums” is a new trend in the hospitality industry. The Wall Street Journal had an article about it in its March 7, 2015 issue under the title: “A Room With a Koons” by Deborah Dunn. In this article, Ms. Dunn cites the 21cMuseum Hotel in Louisville, Ky; Le Meridian Chambers in Minneapolis; Le Royal Monceau Raffles in Paris; the Dolder Grand in Zurich, and the Waldorf Astoria Cavalieri in Rome. (“Koons” in the title refers to Jeff Koon’s “Balloon Venus” sculpture at Paris’s Le Royal Monceau).

• “Day Trips on the Fast Track” by Elaine Glusac in the Spring 2015 issue of AAA’s “Traveler” magazine suggests in its subheading: “Many major European cities are only a quick rail ride away from world-renowned attractions”. In it Ms. Glusac cites Paris, Rome, London and Vienna. Surely there are many more that come to mind.

• Leisure time activity opportunities: Again, a concierge ought to have an intimate knowledge of them: Sports (Golf, Tennis, 24-Hr Fitness); Events (Sports, Music, well-known speaker presentations); Museums, Horticultural and architectural attractions.

• Advice on how to share devices without jeopardizing the privacy and security of the user.

“Share the Device, Share the Risk” in the February issue of Business Travel Executive magazine focuses on the hazards of not addressing these matters. Following is an excerpt from the article: “In today’s workplace, the owner of a computer, phone or tablet is often not the only person who uses that device to access the Internet. However, the more people who use a device, the greater the likelihood that one of them will expose the data on that device – and its associated network - to a security breach.” It goes on to state: “Just one third make backup copies of important data before giving a device to somebody else, 32 percent password-protect their data and 22 percent say they try not to store any important information on such devices they give someone.”

As you can see, a concierge’s guidance for a host of activities is endless and points out – again – that those who prefer to do without such guidance may do themselves a disservice. The value added to the traveler’s stay by a concierge should not be underestimated and is worth the extra time spent.

Your comments and suggestions are always appreciated.

CALIFORNIA ACADEMY OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Meet Nori & Bert, the Academy’s Newly Named Penguin Chicks

Earlier this month, we asked you to help us choose names for two of our newest animal arrivals. Nearly 2,000 votes were cast for the names submitted by our museum neighbors, including Asian Art Museum, Exploratorium, de Young, Oakland Museum of California, Walt Disney Family Museum, and Yerba Buena Center for the Arts. We’ve tallied the votes, and it’s official—Nori and Bert are the winning names!

Nori (submitted by Asian Art Museum) is the Japanese name for edible seaweed species of the red algae genus Pyropia. In many Asian countries it is used to wrap the rice and fish (a penguin favorite!) and is a main ingredient of sushi. Bert (submitted by Walt Disney Family Museum) is the name of the character played by actor Dick Van Dyke, who famously danced with animated penguins the Walt Disney film Mary Poppins.

Can’t wait to see them? Get a live view of our African penguin exhibit anywhere, anytime with our free Pocket Penguins mobile app.

Elevations Construction Management, Inc.

Elevations Construction Management, Inc. is a proud sponsor to the Silicon Valley Concierge Association. Parallel in values to the SVCA, Elevations stands firm in guest service and experience. Elevations provides premium project management to the Bay area hospitality industry, ranging from capital improvements to complete development and build out. Founder, Jennifer Freeberg, was recruited from Southern California to the Bay area in 2001 specifically for the Santana Row development. Elevations manages a diverse project portfolio. All clients receive five star attention to service, professionalism, and going the extra mile.

“2015 promises to be an exciting and progressive year with all the new construction underway. Specifically, February 2016 Super Bowl will bring a great influx of business to Silicon Valley and the complete Bay area. As a local firm, Elevations is dedicated to helping facilities refurbish their properties to maximize revenue and guest experience for this exciting event,” Freeberg said.

Levi’s stadium, holds over 68,000 seats - that is a lot of opportunity for the entire Bay area hospitality industry to lodge, entertain, and feed those visitors. We have a great opportunity to make an outstanding impression and give these visitors a reason to return after the Super Bowl, she said.

When asked why potential hospitality clients should chose Elevations, Freeberg said, “We understand facilities and operations as much as revenue. Our project managers work directly with the client’s in house operations to strategically streamline construction projects in operating environments. We just try harder on both the delivery as well as the quality control. We want to return to these businesses as guests and be proud of the work completed.”

Aside from Elevations, Freeberg is an integral member of the Silicon Valley steering board committee for the United States Green Building Council as community outreach. She is active in various charities including; Help One Child, Larkin House and The Guardsmen. Learn more about Elevations Construction Management at www.elevationscm.net.

A PUB, A PINT, AND A PLAY

ShakesBEERience San Jose presents Richard III at Café Stritch on Monday, April 20th from 6:30-8:30pm
“Bloody though art, bloody will be thy end”

Director/producer John McCluggage presents the next installment of ShakesBEERience San Jose – one of Shakespeare’s best known historical tragedies. Professional actors will unpack the language in a playful, unique and accessible way in an easy-going, and entertaining environment while you drink, eat and generally have a good time! Whether you come for the whole reading, or can just stay for one scene - the ShakesBEERience you have is up to you. This is the second presentation in the 2015 season.

Richard III will be directed by McCluggage and star Kevin Condardo, Managing Director of 7 Stages Shakespeare, who has appeared with that company as King John and Richard III, among others. The reading will feature Jeff Kramer, Derek McCaw, Maryssa Wanlass, James Reber, Charlie McCollum, Karen Piemme, Lee Kopp and other local favorites.

McCluggage’s approach to the production will focus on the richness of Richard as a character. “Richard is a villain but he is a 3-dimensional one and a committed one. He says it best when he says: ‘And therefore since I cannot prove a lover …. I am determined to prove a villain and hate the idle pleasures of these days.’”

ShakesBEERience San Jose is a series of staged readings which are free and open to theater lovers, pub lovers, pint lovers and those who are just curious. No reservations necessary, admission is free, seating first come first served! Previous events have played to standing room only. The 2015 ShakesBEERience San Jose season includes four staged readings and will include a special fundraising evening in the fall.
