How Cell Phones Impact Gorillas

Coltan is a mineral used to manufacture cell phones, tablets, and small electronics.

The deforestation and mining associated with coltan production has impacted and displaced gorillas, moving them closer to extinction.

Recycling and extending the life of electronic devices reduces the demand for coltan mining.

Extend the life of your cell phone: commit to using it a few years longer and recycle it when you upgrade. Through simple actions, we can help protect gorillas and their habitat on World Gorilla Day and beyond.

This performance is performed ENTIRELY IN RUSSIAN, is 90 minutes long with one 15 minute intermission and is appropriate for ages 8+ due to subject manner.

Can one man, one moment, derail a century? Pulitzer Prize finalist Rajiv Joseph explores the present by focusing on the past: the assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand in Sarajevo, 1914 — the flash that ignited World War I. On a darkly comic quest for immortality, three hapless insurgents prove that little has changed from then to now. This New Works Festival sensation is from the author of Broadway’s Bengal Tiger at the Baghdad Zoo.

8 Effortless Ways to Be a Five-Star Coworker

I’m not saying that we don’t have bad days, but going into work in a bad mood is unfair to your coworkers. Like you, they are paid to perform a job, well. Admittedly a coworker’s mood should not affect our ability to complete a task, but in reality, it does.

Whether you are long-term employee or a newcomer, distinguish yourself by being the five-star coworker every one aspires to be. Bonus: the boss will notice.

Here are 8 effortless ways to become a five-star coworker:

1. Greet or acknowledge coworkers with a smile or a nod.
2. Take a moment to talk to new coworkers to help make them feel welcome and included.
3. Be reliable. This means arriving to work on time; not taking a “mental-health” day when your department is swamped; and, doing your job well.
4. Practice courtesy. Always remember to say “Please” and “Thank you.”
5. Congratulate your coworkers when they’ve done a great job, received a promotion, or achieved a personal goal.
6. Express concern and/or interest when coworkers experience health concerns or are going through a personal loss or trial. (Privately, of course.)
7. If you have offended or been rude to a coworker, promptly and sincerely apologize. (Without excuses.)
8. Listen without interrupting—allow the person to complete their sentence.

This may sound cliché, nonetheless, I’ll say it; tomorrow is a new day, an opportunity to choose to become the coworker everyone looks up to and looks forward to seeing. It takes courage to change, but once you tackle one of these, you’ll be able to take on the next one.
